To Whom It May Concern:

I am pleased to recommend Dinyar Wadia and his associates for any bespoke architectural and construction project.

Dinyar oversaw the complete renovation of our 1901 Queen Anne style residence, which had not been updated in decades. Our objective was to restore the original style and feeling of the house but to thoroughly modernize its systems and fixtures. We also added on a new section to the house during this process.

Dinyar's passion for design perfection and commitment to understanding and implementing our renovation preferences was incredible. There was no detail that Dinyar did not contemplate on our project. As an example, Dinyar searched for and installed special glass in all of the windows that matched the age of the house, and he became well-versed in the designers of the British Arts and Crafts movement as he incorporated period fixtures and motifs into the project. Dinyar also took the time to understand the special requirements our project needed to make the house suitable for a kosher and Sabbath-observant Jewish family.

Perhaps as important as the magnificent design composition and architectural work of his team, we found Dinyar to be one of the most considerate and agreeable gentleman we have ever encountered, whose desire to please clients is unmatched. I had not considered how many hours we would spend together with our architect when we embarked on our project and I can say that collaborating with Dinyar to create a family home together was both inspiring and gratifying.

After our project was completed, Dinyar and his team remained accessible to us, as they do to this day, to consider and implement other small design projects or systems upgrades to our home. In the end, that is the most compelling aspect of Dinyar's work: he transforms his clients' houses into highly personalized, and delightful, homes.

Sincerely,

David A. Messer
